

Vintage Collection

Whenever Steve hosts an Embroidery Party he always gets asked questions regarding digitizing. The questions range from simply how is digitizing done? How many stitches are in that design? And the most popular, How long does it take? The answer to the last question is the hardest. The amount of time it takes to create a design is determined by how much hand shading and hand detail is in a design. The amount of time it takes to create a design has nothing to do with the stitch count. Steve always tells everyone that the hardest designs to digitize are always the designs that resemble old fashioned hand embroidery. There is a lot of time invested in a collection like this. There are ten main designs that come in two different sizes. In this collection each main design has border elements that go with them for larger designs. There are also lots of smaller designs that you can use on anything you can imagine.
